Paradigm provides public awareness, pipeline safety training, and damage prevention compliance services to assist with the regulatory requirements of 49 CFR 192 and 195, as well as API RP 1162. Since 2001, the oil and gas industry has worked with Paradigm to fulfill public education and community awareness requirements. Our history of implementing public awareness programs and compliance services pre-dates API RP 1162. Most of the pipeline industry's large, mid-sized and small operators, as well as many local distribution companies utilize Paradigm's compliance services. In serving our clients, Paradigm performs full-scope compliance programs from audience identification through effectiveness measurement. In addition, we offer consulting services for plan evaluation and continuous improvement. At the completion of each compliance program, we provide structured documentation which precisely records all elements of the program's implementation to assist with audits.

OPAL
okpipelineawareness.com

Contact: Renee Collier
Email: Renne.Collier@ONEGAS.COM

OPAL is a member-driven organization of pipeline operators dedicated to improving public awareness of pipeline transportation and safety. Under the direction of the members, OPAL has a strong liaison program with emergency responders, public officials, and excavators. The current program not only meets the baseline guidelines identified in RP 1162 for emergency responder, public official and excavator outreach, but also provides several supplemental enhancements for further community engagement. In an effort to provide a better product to the emergency responder stakeholders, OPAL and OKPERI joined forces in the fall of 2019. This merger will go into effect on January 1st, 2020. OKPERI, now PERI, is a sub-committee within OPAL with the same mission as before the merger: to provide sustainable training for first responders; place emphasis on pipeline emergency response training; establish alternative pipeline emergency response training delivery methods; enhance operator emergency responder outreach and liaison programs; and promote responder awareness of their role in reducing excavation damage incidents. With this merger brings new and exciting things to not only the emergency responders of Oklahoma but to the operators in Oklahoma as a whole.

Blood Hound Underground Utility Locators
bhug.com

Contact: Jordan Partlow
Email: jordandpartlow@bhug.com

The law requires you to call 811 to have public utilities marked before you dig. However, public utilities will only locate the facilities they own - electric, gas, oil, sewer, telephone, water. The vast majority of underground utilities are privately owned, which is why you need to make Blood Hound your second call.

We locate ALL underground utilities and structures and offer a range of highly specialized subsurface utility services to significantly reduce your risk of costly damages and project delays and mitigate safety hazards for your crews and community.

Contact: Dr. Rick Moore
Email: RMOORE@OMCAOK.COM

The Oklahoma Municipal Contractors Association (OMCA) has been working for the benefit of all municipal utilities contractors since incorporation on February 20, 1950.

As the work load increased with greater emphasis on water supply and pollution control, so have the problems become more complex and demanding.

A national voice in the construction industry was secured when the OMCA became a charter chapter of the Associated General Contractors of America on September 30, 1965.

Professional services are provided in the areas of public relations, education, and government relations. A registered lobbyist also monitors legislation. Continuing liaison is maintained at the municipal, state and federal levels to deal with matters of concern to the OMCA membership concerning the construction industry.
